WHAT THEY PROPOSE.

One of the administration organs which welcome our morning contem-perary back into the regular Republian organization with a cordiality that amounts to gice, suggests that the only to secure bimetallism in this country is to change the ratio to 22 to 1 and twalt the further pleasure of European

Independent bimetallism is out of the question, it says, because the country is so rich right now that it doesn't need the remonetization of silver, and because the administration doesn't want it, anyhow. And it insists upon the ratio being 22 to 1, in any event, whether independent or international, for the reason that European financiers cill not permit us to establish any

It is really too had that we cannot get the consent of our foreign friends to adopt a financial policy for this rich and reputedly independent republic; and it is rather surprising to see men, who tried a few years buck to raise a British scare in America and make people believe that Englishmen were trying to outline our commercial poli-cy, turn now to tell their fellow-citizens that they must look to foreigners

SOME OF THE CAUSES.

So long as negroes and negro champions in the north confine their discus-sion of lynching to a condemnation of the practice, they are entitled to a respectful hearing. All law-abiding citi-zens will agree with them that lynching is wrong.

at least none of the so-called intelletual negroes of the north and west, has yet found it possible to condemn lynch-ing without going farther and revealing the characteristics that provoke its frequent application in the south. They make covert attacks upon the white to arouse a corresponding sentiment among the whites. They set themselves up, encouraged by demagogues and religious flatterers, to criticise the morals of the white man. They sneer at the idea of white women being virtuous whom bestial black brutes have outraged. An example of this is given in an evening paper. This is the great trouble down south. The negroes hide and screen and excuse these fiends; and they make it a race question; they go into court and hang together like a lot of Chinese; they cir-culate stories about the prosecuting witness; they sing and pray in jail and seem anxious "to go to glory"; other regrees look upon them with envy as they gradually become what they term "sanctified"; they are heroes in court and martyrs at the scaffold. The ordinary death penalty holds out no terrors for them. They are not of a mental calibre, these ravishers, to seriously con-sider the come, the punishment, the infamy. They pass their days in indolence, as much at home in jail as out, and never think of the scaffold till they walk upon it. In the meantime their fellow negroes have forgotten what it was all about, having never sensed the But Flyan preceded Casey, and likewise so did Blake. enormity of the offense or realized the severity of the punishment.
